

Three Histories Outline

To make an accurate assessment of your Kundalini rising and to provide effective recommendations to improve it, an analysis of your three histories (life, health, and spiritual) is necessary. The information you provide will, of course, be kept confidential. Please tell your stories honestly and objectively. You may describe things in your own style, and you may be brief, but be sure to cover all the important points. Try to be chronological within each topic, and provide dates/ages when possible. Complete information is required for correct understanding. Narratives should not exceed about 20 pages.

The items listed below are to aid you in organizing the information we need. These items are not provided as questions to be filled in but as areas to be discussed. Some items may not be relevant to your story, and you may need to add some items. The information the topics will yield is relevant to understanding how your chakras, nadis, and vayus function in your subtle body. The sexual information is requested in order to understand the functioning of your endocrine system, which is closely related to the chakra system.

Please read through all the items before you begin to write so you can decide how to best arrange your narrative. You do not have to follow the exact order indicated under each category of this list. Completing this life review with sincere reflection and objective contemplation is in itself a preparatory practice for advancing your spiritual life.
